Mt. Franklin Insurance

What is Commercial Insurance?

Commercial Insurance helps protects your business from liabilities such as lawsuits from third-parties, injuries to customers or employees, and damage or theft of business personal property.

Types of
5 Commercial Insurance

1 General Liability Insurance

General Liability insurance covers you if someone is injured because of you or your employees' negligence. It also covers damage to others' property caused by you. This type of policy can also include coverage if you are accused of personal or advertising injury, which includes defamation and slander.

2 Property Insurance

Protect your buildings and their contents from theft, physical damage, natural disasters and fires.

3 Commercial Auto Insurance

Commercial Auto Insurance covers cars you may use for your business. This type of policy can include Liability, Collision, Comprehensive, Uninsured motorists, and other coverages.

4 Workers' Compensation

Workers compensation insurance provides coverage for your employees if they are injured on the job. It will pay their medical bills. By having this insurance your business has extra legal protections from being sued by your employees.

5 Cyber Liability Insurance

This insurance protects you when a data breach affects you or your clients.
